Downs MIG Without a Shot

U. S. 5th Air Force Headquarters, Korea, Oct. 2 (A)—A jet pilot from Tennessee was credited with downing a Russian-type MIG 15 jet today without firing a shot.
Capt. Paul W. Bryce of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., said it happened when he squeezed out from between two Red jets. He didn't know whether his jet blast or fire from the second MIG knocked out the Commu nist plane. "Two MIGs were closing in on me with the old squeeze play, one from either side," Bryce recalled. "I cut inside the one on the right and pulled up sharply.

'It was a collision course and I didn't get a chance to fire at the MIG.

"I passed over him so closely that my plane bounced and I thought we had collided.

"I whipped over to the left and saw that the MI GI had narrowly missed had blown up. either from my jet blast or from being hit by bullets from the other MIG.

Arkansas in Middle of Two Key Subjects

Washington, Oct. 2 (49) - Arkansas is right in the middle of two very important subjects these days aluminum and electric power. The federal government wants more aluminum. Aluminum production requires great amounts of electric power, so the two matters are closely related.

Arkansas' position is this:

It is the only state in the union with large deposits of bauxitesource of aluminum— and is among the states with the greatest poten With the country needing both Complicating the power picture is the running public power-private power feud. But here, too, progress was made this past week. C. Hamilton Hoses, president of the Arkansas Power and Light Company and a leading exponent of private power, and Doug Wright Southwestern Power Administrator sat down for talks about a possible

If they eventually get together the feud may die down and public power and private power might live peacefully in the same area.

The presently publicized troubles inside the bureau of internal revenue, which last year collected about $50,000,000,000 in taxes from Americans, date back about a year.

The bureau of internal revenue's activities extend into every state through the 64 offices of collectors. The average salary of a collector is $10,500 a year.

Argentina Seems to Be About Normal

Buenos Aires, Argentina. Oct. - Argentina returned to worka-day routine today following the excitement of last Friday's shortlived revolt. A decree proclaiming a state of internal war was still in effect, however, It proclaimed death for the military men who particapted in the up-Newspapers supporting President Juan D. Peron carried almost identical stories charging the opposition Radical, Conservative and Socialist parties with being mixed up in the affair.

The pro-Peron newspaper Democracia said a group of Nationalists 'irrated at Peron's refusal to declare war on the United States" plotted to kill him and establish a dictatorship "without realizing that the whole maneuver was planned and financed by Wall street."
